

GOLF

A pretty sight: Natalie Syke, Emily Thorseilus and Anna Boman collected plenty of money for the Queensland flood and cyclone victims.

Pictures: Mike Sea

Impersonate: Terry Bouggas from St George Graphics and Printers does his best Paul Sironen impersonation.

On course to helping disaster victims

Hamming it up: The gang from St George Graphics and Printing with Natalie Syke.

By Brad Forrest

ALMOST 100 golfers willingly lent their time and their money to help the Premier's Disaster Relief Appeal which is helping Queenslanders affected by recent flooding and Tropical Cyclone Yasi.

The golfers also enjoyed a darn good time on and off Woollooware Golf Course — the special fund-raising golf tournament organised by Raine & Horne Miranda.

The weather favoured the big day out, and competition was fierce among the company's many clients and friends.

In the end, it was players with Michael Kava's group from Little Marketing who emerged the winners, with 58 points.

"We are pleased to see how the Sutherland Shire community has joined together in such an enthusiastic way to raise money for the appeal," said George Bouteris, principal of Raine & Horne Miranda.

"We know that while we continue to help Sutherland and the surrounding suburbs with all their real estate and property needs, there are Australians who do not even have a house to go to.

"That is why we felt it important to bring the community together to help and were grateful for the sponsors who gave generously to make the golf tournament a success, and Glenn Cable and the rest of my staff for organising this event."

Check them: The girls from the Chequered Past team — Jillian Hedison, Maralyn Lews, Lyn Keogh and Elaine Martin — enjoy the day.

Watch me: Event organiser Glen Cable got a chance to play a round of golf.